3 ORDAINED AS PRIESTS

TWO NODAWAY COUNTY BOYS TAKE LIFE VOWS.

HELD AT CONCEPTION

Ceremonies in Conception With College Commencement and Alumni Reunion.—Julius Doffing a Graduate.

Two Nodaway County boys, Raymond Auer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Auer of Conception Junction, and Ernest Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Graham of near Stanberry were ordained to the priesthood in the Abbey Church at Conception at 6:30 o'clock this morning by the Rt. Rev. Father Francis Gilfillan, D. D., bishop of St. Joseph. One other young priest was ordained at the same time.

Both Father Auer and Father Graham are graduates of Conception College. Father Auer will celebrate his first solemn high mass on Thursday morning, June 9, at the Holy Family Church at Conception Junction. The Rev. Father Lawrence, formerly of the St. Mary's Church of Maryville, will preach the sermon at that time. Father Graham will celebrate his first solemn high mass on Sunday morning, June 12, at St. Peters Church Stanberry. His brother, the Rev. Father Robert Graham, is pastor of St. Peters Church. The Rev. Father Richard Felix, pastor of St. Mary's Church of Maryville, will preach the sermon at this service.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Parle and son, Francis, Mr. and Mrs. John Graham and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Auer and family were among the Maryville visitors at the ordination services. Father Graham is a nephew of Mrs. Parle and Mr. Graham, while Father Auer is a brother of Mr. Auer. Francis Parle attended the alumni banquet this noon at the College.

At the comencement exercises held last evening at Conception College, Julius Doffing of Maryville received a B. A. degree, and Leander Engemann of Trenton and Joseph Rooney of Kansas City finished the college course. Twenty were graduated from the high school department.

The highest average for the sophomore class went to Alfred Coppersmith of Clyde, a sophomore, and the highest freshman average to Adolph Schmidt of Melrose, Minn.

In his address to the graduates, the Rev. Father Richard Felix said the graduates should have vision and a goal.

This afternoon graduates and former students of the College were gathered in an alumni reunion.

The Democrat-Forum requested officials of Conception College to furnish a report of the exercises and the ordination ceremonies. The contributed article follows:

The forty-fourth commencement of Conception College will stand as a landmark in our history. An unusually successful year, spiritually, mentally, and athletically, crowned and cheered by the homecoming of the Old Boys, inspired and uplifted by the ordination of five deacons and three priests, will not so easily fade from an ever-widening horizon of happy memories.

The day is not over as we write. To my ears, as I sit fingering, come the distant strains of the organ, carrying with them the joyful acclamations of united thanksgiving, in the closing High Mass of the school-year, round the same Altar whereon early this morning our favored comrades were initiated into that grand army of Christ which we call the Priesthood. Announced by the program on my desk as yet to come is a general business meeting, a banquet, a baseball game (alumni vs. varsity), Mayday lunch under the pines, a minstrel by C. C. "C." club in the college auditorium.

The day is not over. But enthusiastic friends, prevented from appearing in person, have called for a word of communication at the earliest possible moment; hence these lines, and surely, on this day if ever, what is past is harbinger of what is to come. The speakers at last night's Commencement lifted us indeed to unlooked-for heights, but once on those heights we feel it is good to be there, and that only with reluctance shall we redescend to the more sober atmosphere of everyday life.

The address of welcome by Albert Becker, with its vision of a greater and grander Conception, surrounded by the growing generations of faithful and energetic sons, opened suitably the inspiring evening. Robert Bock for the

WILL "SWAB" QUITMAN WELL

BELIEF HELD 400 TO 500-BARREL WELL IS THERE.

TO SHOOT IN 10 DAYS

Drilling Suspended Yesterday at 1,400 Foot Depth—Water Sinks In Well No. 2.

There still is possibility of a 400 to 500-barrel oil well at location No. 2 of the Quitman Gas and Oil Company, by "swabbing" and shooting the well at a depth from 1332 to 1337 feet.

The board of directors of the company, meeting last night with E. C. Blood and Howard Manning, geologist, directed George Rose, drilling contractor, to order a swab, and casing which will take about three days to get here. A swab was explained today by Mr. Manning, as a suction pump that takes the water out of the sand and pulls the oil back into the well from the sand, into which it has been driven back by water pressure.

The action was taken as the result of several incidents which have taken place within the last two or three weeks at the well, located northwest of Maryville, leading the company and its employes to believe a flow of oil will be found at depths where sand was struck.

The incidents today were related by Mr. Manning as follows:

"On May 23 Raymond Rose, drilling, found a five-foot sand heavily saturated with oil, from the 1332 to 1337 foot level. This sand carried water, proving that the drilling had reached the oil and water contact line in the earth's structure.

"It was thought at that time the water would be inexhaustable. However, after drilling for two days and bailing the water out of the hole at the end of each 'screw,' George Rose, contractor, noticed the water was going down in the well with each bailing.

"A water string was put on and it was found that the water was receding in the well ten feet at each bailing and did not come up.

"It was decided the water could be exhausted and the oil pulled back to its original place in the sand by swabbing the well."

Mr. Rose has stated he thinks the sand at either the 1302 or 1332 feet levels would have made a ten barrel well natural flow if it had not been for the water.

After swabbing the well and pulling the oil back into the hole, a sixty-quart shot of nitro-glycerine probably will be shot off. It will take three days for the swabbing and about a week or ten days in all before the nitro can be shot off. Drilling was suspended yesterday after a depth of 1400 feet had been reached.

Eugene Yehle Returns Home.

William Sadler of Pickering was taken to the St. Francis Hospital today where he will undergo an operation for abscess tomorrow morning.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hall and family of Elmo left this morning in their car for Colorado where they will probably locate.

Mr. and Mrs. George Donahue of Kansas City arrived in Parnell last night to visit Mrs. Donahue's mother, Mrs. Hettie Henson.

VALUATION TO BE DISCUSSED

A STATE MAN COMING

Farm Representative Also to Be Present in Attempt to Equalize Assessments.

Equalization of property valuations will be the purpose of a meeting which will be held at the courthouse here tomorrow by a representative of the State Tax Commission, the fifteen township assessors of the county and representatives of the farmers of the county.

The meeting is one of a series being held by the tax commission in cooperation with the county courts, township assessors, county farm bureaus and other county farmers' associations in fifteen north central Missouri counties.

The Missouri Farm Bureau Federation has been working with county and state agencies for three years on the taxation problems of Missouri farmers, according to a recent announcement at the Jefferson City headquarters of the association. Evidence has been presented at the other hearings, and is expected here, to prove that the farmers' property is assessed relatively higher than other classes of taxable property, and that farm land is assessed relatively nearer its market value than are other classes of property.

Ernest Wray of Maryville, vice-president of the state Farm Bureau Federation, is chairman of the tax equalization work, and he has attended a number of the hearings. Today he was at Albany, where a meeting of the assessors of Gentry county was held. He has invited a number of other farm representatives to attend the meeting here. Among them are William A. Needles of Parnell, county president of the Missouri Farmers Association; Frank Miller, Hopkins, county president of the Farmers Union; Ed Hamilton, Elmo; Thorn H. Acklin, Graham; G. T. Logan, Parnell; George Ulmer, jr., Hopkins; and others.

Another purpose of the meeting is to acquaint the newly elected assessors with their work and to clear up points on which they may be doubtful. The county court, in notifying the assessors of the meeting, specified that they were to attend at their own expense.

At other hearings the state commission has been represented by Forrest Smith, a member of the commission, Roy A. McCoy, secretary, or H. S. Bales, field representative. Local officials have not been notified which one will conduct the meeting here.

He will visit a sister, Mrs. Ada Holton at Stockton. At Stockton he also will meet a son, Jerry S. Sayler of Portland, Ore., and the two will drive along the west coast to Portland.

Judge Sayler said he was looking forward to a visit with an old army comrade and bunkmate, John K. Walker, who is at the Soldiers' home at Orting, Wash. On his way back to Missouri the Judge will stop at Boulder, Colo., to visit a brother, J. V. Sayler. His last stop will be at Liberty, Neb., to visit a brother-in-law, D. M. Michael.

During Judge Sayler's absence, Mayor W. O. Garrett will act as police judge.

WOULD CURB THE CAYHOGA

DRAINAGE DISTRICT WEST OF BURLINGTON FORMED.

COMMISSION IS NAMED

William Blackford, S. J. Smith and E. O. Gray to View Land in Proposed Boundaries.

A move to form a drainage district to reclaim land lying west of Burlington Junction, which at times has been flooded by Cayhoga Creek, took form yesterday when the county court appointed a surveyor and a commission of three men to view the land, designated for the district in a petition, presented by Edyth Monk, Erwin Hollis and Edgar C. Johnson.

The court appointed Joseph Reese surveyor, and William Blackford of Maryville, S. J. Smith of Barnard, and E. O. Gray of Pickering as the commission to view the Cayhoga district, for the purpose of assessing benefits and damages and estimating the approximate cost of the work.

The petition, signed by all the property owners, asks that the court incorporate the district so that Cayhoga creek can be straightened for a stretch less than two miles. It is proposed to construct a new channel for the Cayhoga from the east line of section sixteen, range thirty-seven, township sixty-five, which is a short distance west of Burlington Junction, to connect with the new channel of the Nodaway River, except about 600 feet at the west end where the old channel of the creek can be used.

The petition claimed that the creek overflows and inundates the land west of Burlington Junction, making the drainage work necessary to reclaim the land.

Property owners and the amount of land they have in the proposed district, were set forth as follows:

Edyth Monk, 3.25 acres; A. C. Nicholas, Miles Nicholas, Charles Nicholas, James Nicholas, W. P. Nicholas, Laura Corken, Etta Manning, 63¾ acres; Earl Hollis, .25 of an acre; Jerry Jones, .57 of an acre; Edgar C. and Leonora W. Johnson, one acre; Lydia W. Ellis, Wm. Ellis, Sallie Ellis and Maude McPherson, 6.28 acres; Leonora and Edgar C. Johnson, 45 acres; Irwin Hollis, 3 acres; John O. Forbes, 12 acres; U. S. Wright, three tracts of 39, 100 and 4 acres each; Marcus Carter, 15 acres; Effie McMacken and Richard Zaru, Jr., 70 acres; Katie Rundle, 23 acres; Roy D. Stafford, 12 acres; T. A. Corken, 80 acres; Emily D. Stafford, 70 acres, right-of-way of the C. B. & Q. Railroad and roads maintained by the state and county.

A bond of $100 accompanied the petition.

PLANES TO GREET HIM

Navy Dirigible and Both Army and Navy Airmen Will Meet Atlantic's Conqueror.

Washington, June 7.—The government is making no plans as yet for the reception for Clarence D. Chamberlin. President Coolidge, in absence of information regarding the time of Chamberlin's return, has given no thought to any celebration.

Washington, June 7.—Plans for the national reception and ovation to Lindbergh were completed and approved by President Coolidge today.

The naval dirigible Los Angeles will greet the flier far out to sea Friday, accompanying it until nightfall.

The naval aviation welcome off Hampton Roads will be participated in by a score of planes of all types. The navy planes will fly on one side of the cruiser and a score of army planes on the other side.

Race for Honors Is Close.

New York, June 7.—Analysis of the transatlantic flight of the Spirit of St. Louis and the Columbia show a remarkably close race for honors.

Lindbergh did it first, but Chamberlin went farther by some 295 miles.

Lindbergh flew faster, but the Columbia was in the air nearly eleven hours longer.

Lindbergh arrived on schedule, while Chamberlin failed to reach his intended destination without a stop.

Reed and Hawes on Committee.

Chicago, June 7.—The senatorial committee of twelve members which will serve as an official greeting committee to Captain Lindbergh when he arrives in Washington Saturday was announced today by Vice-President Dawes. The committee includes Senators Reed and Hawes of Missouri, representing the state from which Lindbergh received his banking.

To St. Louis June 17.

St. Louis, June 7.—Weather permitting, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, until yesterday Captain Lindbergh, will arrive at Lambert-St. Louis flying field here late on Friday, June 17, from New York, the local reception committee announced late yesterday.

The welcome at the field will be informal. The major celebrations will be held Saturday and Sunday following Lindbergh's arrival. A parade is scheduled for Saturday and a mammoth gathering in Forest park on Sunday. Governor Baker plans to personally confer the higher ranking on Lindbergh at the St. Louis celebration.

When Lindbergh alights in the "Spirit of St. Louis," at 4 p. m., Friday, June 17, a reception committee of three will greet him and Governor Baker and Mayor Victor Miller will escort Colonel Lindbergh to an automobile.

Escort planes will accompany the "Spirit of St. Louis" from New York to Ohio, whence the flight will be escorted with planes from Lambert field and Scott field, Belleville, Ill. Ten thousand dollars will be added to the $20,000 Lindbergh reception fund already subscribed, from the municipal advertising fund, Mayor Miller announced today, adding that Lindbergh on his epochal flight was the best advertising the city could have.

Kansas City Pastor Protests William Jewell's Acceptance of $100,000

Liberty, Mo., June 7.—Three degrees conferred by William Jewell College on Dr. D. J. Evans, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Kansas City have been returned.

Dr. Evans returned the degrees in protest against acceptance of a $100,000 gift to the college on the condition students using it would be taught fundamentalist tenets.

LAND BANKERS ARE INDICTED

KANSAS CITIAN NAMED

Walter Cravens, Head of Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, Faces Fraud Charge.

Toledo, Ohio, June 7.—Guy Huston, president of the Chicago Joint Stock Lank Bank, and seven others who federal authorities charge were involved in wholesale land and stock frauds were indicted on seventeen counts by a federal grand jury today.

Among those indicted are Walter Cravens, president of the Missouri Kansas Farm Co., vice-president of the Kansas City Joint Stock Bank and chairman of the board of directors of the institution. Cravens is now under indictment in Kansas City, charged with fraud in connection with the bank.

Two vice-presidents of the Chicago bank, as well as other members, were indicted.

The government charged that on December 31, 1925, the eight men devised a scheme to obtain money and property by means of false and fradulent pretenses.

Dummy Companies Formed.

They formed a number of dummy companies, the indictments charged, —among them the Farmers Fund Co., of Iowa, the Farmers Fund Co., of Missouri and the Farmers Fund Co., of Illinois, as well as the Missouri-Kansas Farms Co., and the Farms Company of Massachusetts.

The indictment says, "these companies were organized to acquire land and securities of doubtful value and little worth from said land banks." These were carried as assets on the books of the bank and were generally unsalable for the amounts invested in them."

The grand jury refused to take action on charges brought by George Welles, attorney for Huston, who claims letters received by him from persons interested in the case have been tampered with.

Judge Killits refused to discharge the jury after it had returned secret indictments until the jury had an opportunity to hear the charges and investigate.

May Force Liquidation.

Kansas City, June 7.—Forced liquidation of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank was seen as a possibility today by Herman Langworthy, attorney for W. R. Compton, receiver for the bank.

Langworthy made the announcement after Judge Reeves of the Federal Court stated he did not believe there was sufficient cause for the court to assume jurisdiction in the receivership.

The court had been asked to do so to approve the acts of the receiver up to the present time and to reappoint Compton permanent receiver for the bank.

The land bank has capital and outstanding loans of approximately $50,000,000.

Calling of Congress in November Likely

Coolidge Favors Plan If Information Regarding Flood Relief Can Be Obtained Then.

Washington, June 7.—Prospects of summoning Congress in November were increased today by a statement from the White House, emphasizing that President Coolidge favors this plan if sufficient information for formulating Mississippi flood relief legislation can be obtained before then by government departments.

THE BELLANCA ON TO BERLIN

CHAMBERLIN AND LEVINE FINISH INTERRUPTED FLIGHT.

CITY CROWDS CHEER

From Streets and Housetops, Germans Glimpse Plane Which Crossed the Atlantic.

Berlin, June 7.—Clarence D. Chamberlin arrived today in the Bellanca monoplane Columbia, completing a record breaking flight from New York to Berlin which was interrupted twice and which almost ended in disaster in swampy land, eighty miles southeast of the capital.

Charles Levine, backer of the flight, who leaped aboard the craft just before it soared away from New York Saturday morning, was in the cabin with Chamberlin today. The pair left Cottbus, where they had remained overnight, at 4:15 p. m. and landed here at 5:57 p. m.

A Tremendous Ovation.

Chamberlin, Levine and the Bellanca received a tremendous ovation. The entire city was attracted to the open air by the roaring racket of the twenty airplanes which finally composed the Bellanca's flying escort.

The planes wheeled and circled over Berlin, while the townspeople stared upward from streets, rooftops and other places of vantage. As the Bellanca flew over the Templehof air field, most of the 35,000 persons assembled there threw their hats in the air, cheering Chamberlin.

The Bellance and accompanying planes circled for 20 minutes above the capital before alighting.

Berlin telephone operators were instructed to keep one telephone line open to enable Chamberlin to talk by radio telephone with his mother as soon as he has time.

They May Fly Back.

London, June 7.—Some special dispatches from Berlin say that Chamberlin and Levine plan to fly successively to Vienna, Rome, Paris and London, but do not quote a definite statement to this effect by the fliers.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch, telling of these contemplated flights, says that Chamberlin has expressed determination to fly back to America from London, where he is due June 15.

Chamberlin Talks to Mother by Telephone

Flier Invites Her to Join Him in Europe.—He Likes German Beer, But Beds Fool Him.

Berlin, June 7.—Clarence Chamberlin, pilot of the record breaking Columbia celebrated his safe arrival today by telephoning his mother at Denison, Ia., and inviting her to come to Europe while he is here. Mrs. Chamberlin told her son she would be glad to accept his invitation if it were possible for her to make the journey.

Referring to his flight over the Atlantic, Chamberlin said the most outstanding impression was that he "found the Atlantic ocean a bigger lake than he expected."

Asked his most pleasant experience of the trip so far, Chamberlin replied, "German beer."

The flier would not reveal the most trying experience of the flight but permitted it to be inferred that it was meeting reception committees.

Being unaccustomed to the rural German custom of using heavy feather quilts as covering at night, Chamberlin slept on top of the quilt last night without cover, thinking the mattress was exposed.

Chamberlin said he intended to visit various European capitals and return to the United States by steamer.

Jack Rowlett Home.

Jack Rowlett, who received his M. D. degree from Harvard Medical College Saturday, returned home this morning to visit his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Rowlett.

The condition of James Honaker of Elmo, who is under treatment at a hospital in St. Joseph, was reported slightly better today.

TWO GREAT AMERICAN AVIATORS.

The route from New York to Europe over the Atlantic bids fair to become a well-traveled airway. With Chamberlin's flight in the Columbia from New York well into Germany two great American aviators have flown across quickly and safely.

It is unfortunate that lack of sufficient gasoline prevented Chamberlin and Levine from reaching Berlin in a nonstop flight. With a few more gallons of gasoline they could have landed in Berlin. They landed at Eisleben, within 110 miles of Berlin, in 42 hours of nonstop, making a new distance record nearly equaling Chamberlin's endurance flight of 51 hours. Their last stop, when the propeller was broken, was 70 miles from Berlin. Their entire non-stop distance was over 4,000 miles, apparently exceeding Lindbergh's flight by somewhat over 400 miles.

Thus, in three attempts to fly between New York and the continent of Europe two were successful. The unfortunate Nungesser and Coli failed, probably on account of weather conditions on the Atlantic, but two American aviators made the flight without mishap.

The cream of the achievement in flying from New York to the European continent was taken by Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. He was the first to fly as far as Paris. He proved that it could be done even with rough Atlantic weather. And then he did it alone. The palm of the first great achievement in long-distance nonstop flying deservedly went to Capt. Lindbergh.

Nevertheless the highest honor and credit are due to Chamberlin, who made a greater distance, and with a passengen, on less gasoline, two conditions which prevented him from going to Berlin. In following Lindbergh, exceeding his distance by several hundred miles, Chamberlin has set a new record. He clinched the proof that the flight can be made safely under proper conditions, and that plane and motor are equal to the task.

These two American aviators, Lindbergh and Chamberlin, have opened the way to successful aviation on a larger scale between the United States and the European continent. They have demonstrated the machines and the methods. They have indicated practical purposes between the continent of America and the continent of Europe.

All honor to American aviators who had the courage and the skill to blaze the airway over the ocean between the new world and the old. They have opened a new and swift mode of communication and transportation. Further developments will follow till the air mail between the cities of America and the cities of America and the cities of Europe shall be established.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

STATE HEALTH HEAD IS HERE

PLEADS FOR CRIPPLES

5,000 Children Now Deformed Can Be Cured, He Declares—Treatment by State Authorized.

Dr. Henry S. Curtiss, state director of physical education and hygiene, and chairman of the publicity committee of the State Society for Crippled Children is in Maryville and at the State Teachers College today and tomorrow. He will speak at the weekly assembly at the College tomorrow morning.

Dr. Curtiss has charge of physical education and health education in Missouri. Awarding of state letters and medals comes under his supervision. Last year 18,000 medals were won by grade students; 1,336 high school letters were awarded; 189 letters were won by teachers; and 80 letters were won by college students.

One of the most vital projects in which Dr. Curtiss is at present interested is the work for the benefit of crippled children. There are 10,000 crippled children in the state of Missouri, and it is almost definitely known that 5,000 of them can be cured, he said. At the last session of the legislature, a bill was passed which provided for a committee to study the situation of crippled children and to make recommendations to the next legislature for its relief. This committee includes Dr. O. H. Baldwin of Pleasant Hill as chairman, and Chas. A. Lee, state superintendent of schools, as secretary. Other members are Dr. James Stewart, Sen. Bayliss Gordon, and Dr. Rex Dively, an orthopedic surgeon.

The committee will study work being done for crippled children in different states and report and make recommendations to the next legislature.

Through Dr. Curtiss' efforts, a state society for crippled children has been organized in this state. The organization of the society was perfected April 15, 1927. "Hi" Martin, president of the Rotary Club of St. Louis, is the president. Other officers are: Mr. Buckingham, first vice-president; Mrs. McCahn, second vice-president, and Miss Augusta Chase, formerly executive secretary of a similar society in Michigan, who will assume her duties as executive secretary of the Missouri society on August 1.

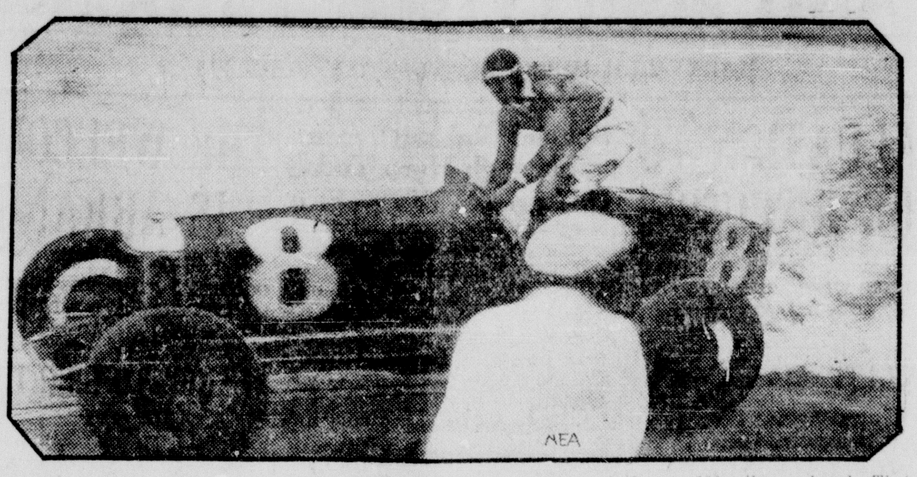
It is the plan of the society to make surveys in every county of the state. After the survey has been made, a clinic will be held which will be in charge of an orthopedic surgeon. There are about twelve of these surgeons in the state and they are experts on the treatment of cripples. A bill passed by the last legislature provides for free care of those children who can be helped and whose parents are not financially able to care for them, in the University hospital at Columbia. Of course, the hospital is prepared to care for only a few, but as fast as some are cured, others will be sent, Dr. Curtiss said.

"We have special schools for the deaf, yet there are ten times as many cripples as deaf, and half of the cripples can be cured," Dr. Curtiss pointed out. "We have 165 students in the School for the Blind at St. Louis, yet there are ten times that many crippled children."

Dr. Curtiss would not minimize the work done by these two schools, but he wishes to reveal the facts about crippled children.

The society which is now organized, is raising funds for its work and would appreciate any private contributions which individuals would care to make. There are similar societies in thirty states; twelve states provide for the care of cripples, and if the case be incurable, these states provide for vocational education for the unfortunate children.

What a Thrill This Was to Norman Batten



Imagine your car catching on fire while racing along at a rate of speed close to 100 miles an hour! That gave Norman Batten his thrill on Decoration Day while he was driving in the annual 500-mile speed classic at Indianapolis. The photograph shows Batten standing in the driver's seat. Note the flames at the rear of the speeding car. Standing up, Batten drove his car off the track.

Different Methods Used By Each Country Makes It Difficult To Get At Exact Figures.

Geneva, June 7.—In a last effort to accomplish something towards disarmament before the Coolidge three-power naval conference takes over the question, a special committee of the League of Nations convened here today for the purpose of drafting a uniform armaments budget.

Although the League's Preparatory Disarmament Commission has definitely decided that nothing can be accomplished at the present time toward attaining disarmament by limiting armaments, the commission officially expressed the hope that this might be done at some future disarmament conference.

The United States, England, Italy and Japan were among the leading powers who opposed efforts to reduce armaments by limiting budgets, which, it was insisted, is merely an indirect method when reduction can best be secured by direct methods.

While awaiting the moment, however, when budgets can be limited, it was decided to perfect a system that would permit of the fullest possible publicity of armaments expenditures as well as of comparison. At the present time this is rendered exceedingly difficult because the system of budgeting of each country is so different and useful comparisons are almost impossible.

The committee of budget experts which met today will endeavor to prepare a form of model armament budget. The various nations will not be asked to adopt this for their own use, but merely to use it in preparing a statement of their armaments expenditures which will be filed later with the League of Nations. This will permit every nation to see just what each other nation is doing on the principal items of armaments expenditure.

3 Ordained as Priests

High School, and Julius Doffing for the College, gave us appropriate Valedictories, the one more tempermental, the other more philosophical. And to our readers in general, the name of Rev. Richard Felix, O. S. B., pastor of St. Mary's, Maryville, is guarantee that the address to the graduates was a sound and solid message, seasoned with humor and earnestly and eloquently delivered.

Nor must be fail to add a hurried word of appreciation for the musical setting. The college orchestra, and the Chant Class, and the Brothers and Student Quartet gave us a most pleasing series of selections, among which we would signalize the "Ave Maria" of Franz Abt. And our young Caruso, Jack Nevin, never got a more hearty encore than he did yesterday evening with "Santa Lucia."

To recount the heroes in attainment and deportment, decorated amid cheering and admiring comrades, with that coveted medal of gold, ourruns our space and time.

Further detail, too, of the ordination ceremonies, so rich in mystic meaning, so fraught with the consolations of the centuries, so full of promise for the future, is beyond us for the present, suffice it to say that these wondrous rites, performed by one whose absorption by his task is as impressive and penetrating as his stature is gigantic, subdue the soul to Christ. Our last word, then, be one of gratitude to Right Reverend Francis Gilfillan, D. D., for thus gracing our Annual Commencement. For unless we are much mistaken, June 7, 1927, will be most fondly remembered as the day on which the Rev. Bonaventure Hirner, O. S. B., the Rev. Ernest Graham, and the Rev. Francis Auer were ordained to the holy priesthood.

The Rev. W. S. Woodhull, pastor of the First Methodist Church, went to Maitland today to attend the district conference, which opened this morning for a two-days' session.

Junior Red Cross Continues to Get Portfolios; Japanese Display

Nodaway County schools continue to receive letters and portfolios in return for work which they have sent out through the Junior Red Cross.

Outstanding in the work that has come in recently is a display from Japan. The display includes a battledore and shuttlecocks, used in playing a game in which the battledore is used to keep the shuttlecocks from touching the ground; two dolls, a boy and a girl, showing the dress of Japanese school children; two artistic hair ornaments and a drawing ball.

These things were sent in return for a very fine poster display which the students of Miss Grace Foster at the Washington school sent to Japan. So good were the posters that they were kept on display in the Red Cross museum in Tokyo.

The posters were sent more than a year ago and the students who did the work are now in grade 8B at Washington school.

The articles from Japan are on display at Kuchs Brother as are some pictures from Japan which were included in a portfolio for Barnard.

Two letters were received for county schools. One went to Barnard and the other to St. Mary's school at Clyde in return for a portfolio sent which included a Christmas program. The letters follow:

Fort Yates, North Dakota,
May, 1927.

Dear Friends:

Your pretty portfolio was a glad surprise to us all. Will you please accept our appreciation and our sincerest thanks for the program as well as for your welcome letter. Three cheers for our new little Missouri friends! We have been rather slow in answering, yet if you will forgive us this time we shall do better in the future.

We live in Sioux County near the southern border of North Dakota. Fort Yates is a little town yet it can boast of four schools having almost 500 pupils, (the Government school about 300, the Public School about 120, the High School 12 and ours 60). The government school has a fine school system; the Indian children go to school half a day, while the other half day they are employed in domestic science, which is very helpful to these children.

Our school work must be similar to yours as we have a day school. We take great delight in music and drawing, a gift, the Lord gave to the Red men. In winter we have sewing classes twice a week. Some of our mothers teach us to make pretty beadwork. Maybe we could send you some next year. Here in Dakota we raise a little of everything raised in the northern climate. We have fine flax fields wheat and coal.

Like you we have a two room country school, a big school yard, but not as beautiful as yours, because we can count the trees on our fingers. We planted some this spring yet it will take 20 years and even then you will be ahead of us in Nature beauty of cozy surroundings. But like you we are happy and enjoy the same games, plays and sports as you do. It is only one-fourth of a mile to go to the woods and to the Missouri River. We breath the same crisp mountain air which gave health and strength to our great Roosevelt. So we are especially thankful for the excellent climate the good Lord gave us in our dear Dakota.

Next time we'll set a little boat a sailing and load it with greetings and best wishes. Wonder how they will find you?

We would have many things to tell you, but must close for today.

Our teacher, Sister Seraphine, sends best regards to your teachers. We would be glad to know their names.

Sincerely yours,
St. Bernard's School,
Catholic Mission School.

To St. Mary's School at Clyde.

To our American friends across the ocean.

Dear friends:

Many thanks for your nice letters which we have received from time to time. We enjoyed reading them all, and are very grateful for your kind friendship.

In Hirado, our native home, we are now in the middle of autumn. All the mountains and fields are aflame with autumnal tints and look beautiful. We spend most of our Sundays in glorious out-of-doors.

I usually am awakened by the crow of the domestic fowl, and as I look out of my window, I view beautiful scenery which resembles an oil painting.

Our Hirado is the first place in Japan which commenced trade with the Dutch and English about 370 years ago. Even now, the business houses of that time are kept as places of historical interest. Besides, the locality abounds in famous historical remains. All those things make us think of the prosperity of trade of the olden times on this small islands.

In order to show you some of our historical places, we are sending picture post cards of our place, the frames of which have been made by the students in our manual training class. We hope also that these cards will help you imagine how our country town looks.

We shall be more than pleased if we may hear from you again in the near future. We wish you good health and success in your future.

Very sincerely yours,
The Hirado Junior Red Cross,

ROAD CLAIMS NOT DECIDED

COUNTY COURT DEFERS ACTION UNTIL SATURDAY.

$13,000 CUT TO $7,000

Judges Favor Aid in Obtaining Right-of-Way West of Burlington if Owners Are Reasonable.

The county court will decide Saturday whether to appropriate money to pay claims made by property owners for land proposed to be taken by the State Highway Department for Highway No. 18, west of Burlington Junction.

The court is desirous of aiding the Highway Commission in its work of improving the road, which starts at the east edge of Burlington Junction and runs west for nearly four miles, but it is not financially able to meet the full claims of $13,000, presented yesterday. The judges of the court, E. T. Bailey, Charles Armstrong and J. N. Billingsley, meeting with C. J. Bussjaeger, of the right-of-way division of the highway commission, heard the property owners and their reasons for their claims.

The land in dispute, which the road would take, lies west of Burlington Junction, in Cleveland, a suburb of the town, and west to the end of the project.

Eleven property owners put in claims totaling $13,000 which the court reduced to $7,000. As the state expects to expend nearly $150,000 to improve the road by ditching and grading, the county court felt the county should buy the right-of-way, if it could be purchased at a reasonable cost.

The largest tract of land to be taken for the right-of-way is 6.15 acres and the smallest a 60-foot strip.

Saturday the court will meet again to make final decision on the proposition. If the claims can be reduced within reach of the court, the county will undoubtedly made efforts to buy the land for the right-of-way. Settlements will probably be offered the property owners. Should exceptions be made, the next step would be condemnation proceedings in the circuit court for deeds for right-of-way that cannot be compromised.

Prized Antique Furniture is Owned by Dr. Vilas Martin

A solid walnut desk, hand made, which was used in the Drovers' National Bank in St. Louis before the Civil War, is the property of Dr. Vilas Martin at his office on South Main street.

The desk is in daily use. Miss Mabel Martin, who assists her brother, uses it. It was brought to Maryville by Mr. Ross, President of Maryville's first electric light company, in 1890. Mr. Ross had been an official of the Drovers' National Bank.

Dr. F. M. Martin, father of Miss Martin and Dr. Vilas Martin, purchased the desk from Mr. Ross and it has been used in the Martin offices since that time.

The desk has never been repaired. It has no nails nor screws. It is dovetailed and pegs are used to hold it together. The handles on the desk are particularly lovely.

Another piece of walnut, prized highly by Dr. Martin because of association, is a huge walnut medicine cabinet, formerly a book case, which Dr. F. M. Martin purchased when he started practicing medicine at LaHarpe, Ill., in 1877. The medicine cabinet is about one hundred years old. Not a nail nor a tack can be found in the cabinet. Wooden hinges, on the cabinet originally, have been replaced with metal ones. It is hand made. The knobs used for handles are threaded and screw into the drawers.

A picture, purchased in 1877 for fifty cents by Dr. F. M. Martin, also is highly prized by Dr. Vilas Martin. It was purchased to decorate Dr. F. M. Martin's office. The picture portrays two hunters and uniformed soldiers shooting quail, with bird dogs ready to retrieve.

Coolidges to Leave Social Whirl Behind

Wife of the President to Catch Up With Her Knitting While in Black Hills.

Washington, June 7.—President and Mrs. Coolidge will leave their social program behind them when they set out from Washington for the Black Hills of South Dakota, July 1. They will live in a remote game lodge 32 miles from the nearest newspaper society columns.

There may be an occasional guest, but most of their days will be spent only with the blank-eyed stare of the bighorn sheep, munching grass in the front yard, as company.

The first lady intends primarily to catch up with her knitting in the land where Diamond Dick and other ferocious characters of 5-cent fiction shot their way to fame. The busy winter social season has delayed her needlework here.

There will be no hurried preparations for dinner parties, women reporters to meet, or children to pat on the cheek, no movie cameras, no afternoon teas and no social circles—nothing but a few walks up in the hills in the morning while Mr. Coolidge is fishing, knitting in the afternoon and reading in the library at night.

Mrs. Coolidge does not go in for bridge, sewing parties or wholesale afternoon teas. She likes to walk and she likes to knit and her vacation will give her an opportunity to do both. Wives of distinguished citizens of the district likely will be invited to the lodge on occasions, but most of the time she will be free from cares.

Moving the white house out there will be no task. Mrs. Coolidge does not intend to take any furniture with her. The same servants will go along. The new house will be run the same as the old. The servants, most of whom have been caring for presidents for years, need few orders.

Mrs. Coolidge has been selecting her costumes for the trip, but is not planning an extensive new wardrobe.

What Furniture "PICTURES" Really Mean

When

looking at furniture store advertising it may be well for you to know this:

The illustrations—known as furniture "pictures"—rarely tell the right story. A clever artist can make a $200 suite look like a $500 suite. Or, a poorer artist, drawing a $500 suite, will make it look like a $200 suite.

It means that the furniture pictures you look at really mean nothing. You must look at the furniture it self before you can judge whether it is a good value, or not.

That's another reason why we always invite shopping around. You have to LIVE with your furniture—live with it all your life—and for this reason, as well as for the reason that furniture purchases "run into money," you should buy it very, very carefully. All we ask is that you include our store in your shopping around.

VENTILATE TO KEEP HEALTH

SIMPLEST WAY IS TO OPEN WINDOW, SAYS FRYER.

NIGHT AIR IS GOOD

Healthy Man Weighing 160 Pounds Needs 2400 Cubic Feet Per Hour Even When Resting.

The simplest way to renew used air is to open the window.

The idea that night air is unhealthful and must be shut out is a survival from the days when men barricaded themselves to keep enemies from stealing upon them under cover of darkness.

If drafts upon the beds are feared they they may be prevented by getting a piece of board about 12 inches wide and nearly as long as the window sash is wide. Raise the lower sash, slip the board beneath it, and draw the sash down upon it. Outside air will travel upward between the two sashes and spill into the room over the top of the lower sash. This is nothing like so satisfactory as having the upper sash completely down, but it will do a lot for that sick headachy feeling that one has every morning on waking up.

"To keep on living everybody must have sufficient air to breathe; and to keep on being healthy this air should be sufficiently pure and sufficiently moist and sufficiently cool," says Dr. C. P. Fryer, Noda way County health official.

"By ventilation all these ends are sought to be attained.

"In the open air, away from noxious gases, ventilation looks after itself; elsewhere, particularly in houses or in any closed spaces, it must be looked after. No matter how pure the air in such a space may be, anyone who enters it at once begins to pollute it with his breath; it will ultimately become injurious to health unless it is renewed either by natural means (such as wind) or by artificial means.

"Renewal is necessary because when 'breathing in' one takes away something from the air (oxygen); and when 'breathing out' one adds something to the air (carbon dioxide). Oxygen is taken from in-breathed air by the blood that circulates through the lungs and is carried away to help the food build up the body, keep it warm, and energize it—give it power to move. Oxygen constitutes about one-fifth of the air; and about one-half of that one-fifth is breathed out, unchanged, and may be breathed over agin," Dr. Fryer explained.

"Carbon dioxide is part of the waste that is left over in the body when oxygen and food combine to build up the body. It is picked up by the blood, carried to the lungs and breathed out. It is poisonous and injures the body when it is breached in again.

It is estimated that to keep healthy a man weighing 160 pounds needs 2400 cubic feet of fresh air every hour when resting; 3200 when doing light work; and 6100 when doing hard work; a woman weighing 120 pounds needs five-sixths as much, and a child weighing 80 pounds needs seven-twelfths as much.

Factories, churches, theaters and offices all need abundant supplies of fresh air, Dr. Fryer said. Factories need them most of all, for persons doing physical labor breath faster than those who are sitting quietly; and most factories use more or less machinery, whose fires use up (burn) oxygen and release carbon dioxide faster than the breath of many men.

"The simplest day of renewing air by a supply of unused air is by opening the windows; but unless they are very carefully placed and supervised they seldom distribute the air evenly and they often cause persons in one part of a workroom to suffer from heat and bad air while those in other parts shiver and sneeze.

"If natural ventilation is insufficient the best way to renew the air in factories is by the use of big electric fans so placed as to draw off the foul air, or to drive in the fresh or both.

"Temperature and humidity per cent of moisture in the air) are also closely associated with ventilation. The body heat given off by persons congregated in a workroom, church, theater or other buildings raises the temperatudre and increases the moisture. When the temperature rises over 86 degrees and the humidity above 80 per cent they cause considerable discomfort; when they rise higher they cause suffering; and when they rise still higher they may cause heatstroke.

"In winter, on the other hand, the heated air in buildings is usually too dry; foten the humidity falls to 20 per cent, which is lower than that in a desert. Air as dry as this draws moisture from the skin and from the mucous membranes of the nose, throat and mouth and irritates them.

"To be comfortable the humidity of a workroom should be about 50 per cent. A temperature of 62 degrees is quite high enough if the work is active."

Audience Gets Acute Laughitis From "She Stoops to Conquer"

The Coffer-Miller players are welcome to locate permanently in Maryville.

Last night this company of actors from Chicago took a fair-sized audience from the State Teachers College auditorium back to the eighteenth century, and kept it there for two hours of the delightful humor which Oliver Goldsmith wrote into his famous comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer."

Jess Coffer, Martha Miller, and six other persons introduced original interpretations into the lines last night in such a manner that the people who saw the play are undoubtedly suffering today from the after-effects of laughitis.

It was a good play, it was a funny play, and all of the persons in it were particularly adapted to their parts. It is quite possible that most of those who were present last night had seen the play before, for "She Stoops to Conquer" is a classic. But when has a Maryville audience seen such a Tony Lumpkin as Jess Coffer portrayed? And who has played Mrs. Hardcastle with the delightfully ludicrous manner in which Martha Miller appeared last night.

The Coffer-Miller combination was the whole show last night. But it wouldn't have been nearly so effective if there had not been a strong supporting cast. Because the parts were all taken so well, the audience easily imagined itself living two centuries in the past, and the two hours of play went by all too quickly. Some of the audience had difficulty in hearing the actor's words, but this was due partly to the faulty acoustics of the auditorium.

The Coffer-Miller players made use of a portable type of scenery and one big flare in the play last night. It was different, but it was successful.

At 6 o'clock last night it seemed that there wouldn't be much of a crowd for the play. Not many seat reservations had been made. But at 8 o'clock a long line had formed in front of the doors to the auditorium, and sales at the gate furnished a good crowd.

Tonight the same company will present Mariveau's "Love in Livery." If it is half as good as the play last night it will be worth attending.

Reserved seats will be on sale until 6 o'clock at Kuchs Bros.

ART TEACHER TELLS OF YEAR ON CONTINENT

Miss Helen Anderson Returns to United States and Is Assisting at College This Summer.

Miss Helen Anderson, who is regularly employed in the art department at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., has recently returned from a year's study abroad, and is assisting during the present summer quarter in the art department at the State Teachers College. She was here last summer, also.

Immediately after the close of the summer quarter last year, Miss Anderson left to sail for France. She arrived in time to attend the last month of the Fontainebleau School of Fine Arts, where she studied two summers ago. This school is sponsored by the French government and is open to advanced American students. There are three branches of art in the school, painting, sculpturing, and architecture. Miss Anderson studied painting. The studios and the students' living quarters are within the old Palace of Fontainebleau and furnish much interest and enjoyment to American students who go there.

After a month's study there, Miss Anderson went to Paris to study with the well known French artist, Jean Despujols. Here she specialized in portrait painting. Despujols is recognized as a leading artist in this line of work.

Miss Anderson had the good fortune to travel in Holland some time during the month of May. This is the time when the immense tulip beds are in full bloom, a sight beautiful to see. She was making a study of old Dutch masters, and traveled between The Hague and Haarlam. She embarked for this country in time to arrive in Maryville for the beginning of the summer quarter of school.

ATHEISM IN THE SCHOOLS

HOMER CROY WRITES OF "GODLESS" MOVEMENT.

NOT ONLY IN COLLEGE

High Schools Also Have Their Circles—God's Black Sheep, Devil's Angels, Legion of the Damned.

(By Homer Croy in World's Work.)

In its expose of the attempts now being made by the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, to enroll students in high schools and colleges throughout the country, the World's Work tells in this article how the propaganda system operates in the educational institutions. The efforts of this organization are widespread and growing in intensity, the organizers hoping to take advantage of new tendencies of thought and action among boys and girls. The propaganda constitutes a problem not only for parents, but also for the churches.

It is the practice in the high schools of New York to read the Bible at assembly. The students are gathered in the auditorium, there is usually a song service, and during the assembly the Bible is read briefly. Then the students are dismissed.

One morning when the teacher in the Eastern District high school in Brooklyn opened the Bible, Mayer Applebaum rose and started for the door. The principal stopped him.

"What does this mean," he asked.

"I'm not going to listen to such rot," young Applebaum answered, and walked out.

Almost at the same time Meyer Konikow of the James Madison high school, also in Brooklyn, rose and walked out.

Officials Make Discovery.

When the school authorities looked into the matter to see what was the Society of the Godless they found that the organization has 125 members in New York city and that it holds meetings every two weeks, when the Bible is openly scoffed at.

"Pretty good for three months, isn't it?" said Konikow, who is the secretary of the organization. "Just watch our smoke."

The Society of the Godless is part of the national organization known as the Junior Atheist league, which functions in the high schools and colleges of the United States. But more of the junior league later.

Directed From New York.

This is an example of the disbelief that is growing in the high schools and colleges of the United States—aided and fostered by the parent body in New York. The students love pictures—one names and are encouraged by the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, Inc., to pick their own names. After they have enrolled several members a charter is given them. In Philadelphia the high school students rejoice in the name God's Black Sheep.

In Los Angeles the name of the Junior Atheists is The Devil's Angels.

In Rochester, N. Y., they call themselves The Damned Souls.

In the University of Wisconsin they call themselves The Circle of the Godless.

In the University of North Dakota they call themselves The Legion of the Damned. The head of the society is called His Satanic Majesty.

What They Declare.

The beliefs the high school and college students are being encouraged to consider by the inspirers of the movement may be briefly summarized as follows:

There is no God.

The idea of the Virgin Birth is laughable.

There is no heaven and no hell.

Religion is worship of the supernatural and should be abolished.

The church is a dangerous institution.

Another example of the point of view among college students appears in the Pink Dove, a journal of liberal discussion, issued by the students at the University of Kansas. It says:

"In Kansas City recently, two churches on opposite sides of the street exemplified the spirit of this religious age by holding in their respective churches a Ford day and a Chevrolet day on the same hour of the Holy Sabbath.

"One can well imagine the sermon in the church 'offered up' to Ford on the parallel services rendered by Henry and the minister. Each was a self-starter and each ran on gas.

"In the church where the religion of Chevrolet was being bartered, how fitting would have been this text: 'Spirit by John the Baptist; Body by Fisher'."

'Damned Souls' Meet.

The first college atheist body to be organized in the United States through the influence of the 4A's—as the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, Inc., is called by its members—was at the University of Rochester, Rochester, New York, a Baptist institution. The students there chose as their name "The Damned Souls," and this name has been copied by other college organizations over the country.

Since it is the oldest of the college organizations, I arranged to attend a meeting to find out, if I could, just what goes on at a college atheistic meeting. Through a bit of management, I was allowed to attend, as these organizations usually meet behind closed doors.

Against Marriage.

The subject at this meeting was not religious, as each time the subject changes. Two speakers, who had been previously chosen among the members, were assigned the subject, "Resolved, that marriage is an antiquated institution and should be abolished."

The speaker who had the affirmative launched with spirit and dash into an attack on marriage. I pity my honorable opponent on the other side," he said. "First, we must get rid of the idea that marriage has anything to do with religion. Of course, there are pagan rites hanging on to it like mistletoe to a dead tree, but the church grabbed marriage and for centuries had a throttle hold on it. Now, thank goodness, we're beginning to tear its fingers off."

He attacked marriage as a wornout institution. It had no logic, it wasn't good psychoanalysis, and it hadn't anything to do with morality.

Children a Problem.

"The children are the only things we have to consider," he said, "and they have nothing to do with morals." He had not solution as to what to do with children born outside of wedlock.

The whole affair was conducted as a debate. The other speaker defended marriage on sentimental grounds and for the sake of the children, but he had the unpopular side at that meeting. The first speaker was allowed a rebuttal. The popular decision was for the affirmative. Seemingly the girls were as much in favor of it as were the boys.

The formal meeting broke up and groups of twos and threes began to discuss different aspects of marriage.

Tall Blond Not for It.

One girl, tall and blond and good looking said:

"The more you know about marriage the less you think of it. It's like Christianity—fine in theory, but doesn't work out."

Contraception was discussed freely and without hesitation.

"Sex is what makes the world go round and we've got to look it in the face as we should any other fact and try to solve its problems," said another.

So far as I was able to discover, all were atheists, without any religious belief whatever.

They spoke highly of Clarence Darrow; they had once invited him to address them, when he had spoken in Rochester.

Among High Schools.

I shall pass on to another phase of atheism among the young people of America. It is the Junior Atheist league.

This organization, to further the work among high school students and the young people of America, was founded in September, 1926, and is steadily growing. It was inspired by the 4 A's organization. The national secretary is Miss Christine Walker, who lives in Gap, Penna. Miss Walker is 18 years old and until three years ago was secretary of the Christian Endeavor society in her home town and also secretary of the Westminster Guild, a branch of the Presbyterian Church.

Girl of 17 An Editor.

One of the most remarkable manifestations of atheism among the youth of America, to my way of thinking, is to be found in the person of Miss Queen Silver, editor and publisher of Queen Silver's Magazine.

Queen Silver has long been known on the coast as a child prodigy and at the age of nine appeared on the public platform delivering lectures on evolution. On her thirteenth birthday she started her magazine, which now has a national circulation. Queen Silver is seventeen years old and is the Western leader of the Junior atheistic movement.

Her mother is Grace Verne Silver, who had theories about rearing a child progidy and carried them out. Her mother, from time to time, contributes a department in her daughter's magazine with the title A Theological Dictionary.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kaufman and little daughter, Glendora, formerly of Burlington Junction, but now living in St. Joseph, were Maryville visitors yesterday.

Miss MacLeod Here.

Miss Vera MacLeod, who has been teaching in Otho, Iowa, this year, stopped off in Maryville for a few days' visit on her way home to Tyrone, Okla. Miss MacLeod is the granddaughter of Mrs. A. R. Perrin, assistant dean of women at the College. She was graduated from the College in the class of 1926.

Four of the leaders at the flood conference are pictured above. They are (left to right): General Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers, U. S. army; Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago; Secretary of War Dwight W. Davis; Mayor Arthur J. O'Keefe of New Orleans.

BILLY EVANS Says

Anent Mixing 'Em Up.

A change of pace in baseball can be used to advantage in more ways than merely from a pitching standpoint.

When the opposition is taking liberties with a twirler's fast ball and curve, usually a change of pace on the part of the pitcher will solve the situation.

A manager by mixing 'em up can very often get a club out of a slump by a shift or two in his lineup. Donie Bush recently did such a thing with his Pittsburgh club and attained excellent results.

After playing the first 25 games of the season the Pirates boasted an average only a few points better than .500. Feeling the club hadn't shown enough offensive strength, Bush shifted his infield to bring about the desired result.

Hal Rhyne, batting perhaps 50 points below normal, was removed from the lineup. Grantham was shifted from first base to Rhyne's position at second. Joe Harris was pressed into service at first base.

Immediately the Pirates showed a complete reversal of form, went out and hung up the longest winning streak of the year in the majors, 11 straight, and hopped into first place with a comfortable margin.

Earl Whitehill Ambitious.

Manager George Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers seems to think this is Southpaw Earl Whitehill's year.

Joining the Tigers three years ago, Earl pitched fine ball from his very debut and now has a record that shows 15 more victories than defeats covering his big league career.

A constant improvement in his style, a move that now holds the runners close to the bases and a better fast ball, due to added poundage, make Whitehall a highly capable performer. He has always boasted an excellent curve.

It is Whitehill's ambition to break into the select list of major league pitchers who have won 20 or more games. In 1924 he won 17, while last year he captured 16 victories.

Whitehill wants to win 20 games this year to make George Moriarty's managerial road all the softer and the Tiger leader feels that he will do it.

Miller Has Last Laugh.

"Bing" Miller, a three-time discard in the majors, is having the laugh, this spring on the managers who have passed him up.

So far his batting for the St. Louis Browns has been one of the features of the race. His timely hitting has been one of the reason's for Dan Howley's club surprising the folks.

Detroit first had a string on him for three years but finally decided to pass up their title. Two years later Washington brought him back, only to trade him to Philadelphia. After four years with Mack he was passed on to St. Louis.

All these shifts, despite the fact Miller has been a consistent .300 batsman since coming to the majors. This spring he has been stepping along almost 100 points better.

It would take a lot of persuasion and much cash to get him away from the Browns, the way he is going at present.

Like a great many other leading batters of the present day, Miller began his professional career as a pitcher in the minors.

Gertrude Curfman to Colorado.

Miss Gertrude Curfman left yesterday morning for Hot Sulphur Springs, Colo., for an extended visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Claude Glass and family.

IT'S the cigarette of the age — the triumph of all smoking history. Just reflect—at the time when more cigarettes are smoked than ever before—Camels passed them all.

Why? Figure it out and you'll find that Camel is made for the particular smoker whose taste, day by day, is more knowing of quality. Camels are rolled of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. And what blending! Camel's smoothness and mellowness are qualities distinctive to this cigarette.

If you haven't yet tried them, you'll find all your smoking wishes come true in Camels. Mild, clear and smooth from morning to night. Always so satisfyingly good! "Have a Camel!"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON, employes of the big T. Q. CURTIS department store, are taken into their employer's home as his wards for one year, because he wants to help them further ambitions which each has expressed. Billy, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three that is serious, the others having lied to enjoy T. Q.'s generosity.

Billy is infatuated with DAL ROMAINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hired hostess of the Curtis home, but she is deeply troubled when she suspects that he is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton.

Billy tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor, who has disinherited himself and is living in the Wells home in a poor part of town, working in the Truman factory by day and writing music at night.

The girls, unknown to T. Q., learn that he intends to adopt one of them when the year is up and to gain his affections, a series of intrigues, instituted by Nyda and Winnie and curiously involving Mrs. Meadows, Dal Romaine, and EDDIE BANNING, Nyda's chauffeur-sweetheart of department store days, turn the house into a hotbed of plotting and scheming.

Billy is disgusted with the whole thing and loses interest in her violin. Because she has a nervous breakdown, she leaves town for a month and believes in this time she has routed Romaine from her heart. Upon her return, however, she finds she is as much under his spell as ever. Thinking he would please Nyda, who has lied about her ambition to become a kindergarten teacher, T. Q. equips a model school in his home where two days a week Nyda teaches the children of the cook and housekeeper and twins of a wealthy neighbor couple. Reports of her unkindness and carelessness reach T. Q., and he spies on her one day to learn if this is true. The charges are confirmed. When T. Q. lets Nyda know of his presence in the room, she quickly becomes the interested, sweet teacher she has posed as being.

Billy loses interest in her music and finally has a breakdown. T. Q. is disappointed in Nyda's treatment of some children placed under her care in a kindergarten room he has fitted for her, because she has expressed a desire to be a teacher. He decides they need a change and takes the three girls and Mrs. Meadows to Europe for several months. Upon their return, they find the town in an upheaval over a Hindu fortune teller. Dal and RALPH TRUMAN take Billy and Nyda to his suite. He tells Billy she is to marry a man whose description fits Dal Romaine. Nyda returns from her experience with terror-stricken face. Ralph says he believes the man has an accomplice in the town and when the Hindu and Dal disappears simultaneously, Billy remembers these words.

One night Nyda asks Billy to go to the library and get a bok she has left there. Billy complies and while there breaks a strand of beads. While she is picking them up, the butler comes in and finds her stooping before the safe where T. Q.'s diamonds are kept. When Billy returns to her room, she hears a familiar whistle and stealing down to the garden, she finds Dal Romaine.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 49.

Before she was in Dal Romaine's arms, before she felt his long-desired lips upon hers again, Billy was shaking with a frenzy of delight.

"Are you really back?" she begged huskily. "Oh, Dal, Dal! I've been breaking my heart over you! Why did you stay away so long?"

The man's laugh was low and rich with satisfaction. "Business, Mignon, precious. One of us has to think of the Romaine family's future! It won't be long now, will it, darling? Mr. and Mrs. Dalbart Romaine! Do you like the sound of it?"

"Don't Dal. You'll make me cry. Did you just get in? You couldn't wait until morning to see me, could you, dearest?"

"Of course not!" He seized her fingers that were straying over his face and kissed them, one after the other, lingeringly. "But there was another reason why I had to see you tonight. I've just got in, but I'm leaving on the next train—"

"Oh, Dal!" she cried out sharply. "Oh, please, darling, don't leave me again! I can't stand it—I—"

"It is just for a little while, darling. I really shouldn't be here now, but I changed my routine at the last minute. I'm on my way to New York, to wind up a really big business deal. Then I'll be back, darling. No one knows that I'm here but you, and you must promise me not to tell a soul that you have seen me."

"But why, Dal?" She drew back from his embrace, trying to see his face in the dark.

"Well, I'm not seeing Aunt Lucia, and she'd be terribly hurt if she knew I had been here, had seen you and had not seen her. Besides, our midnight rendezvous between trains would cause talk—much talk. Come back, Billy. We musn't quarrel now, dear. Kiss me again."

While she was in his arms it was almost enough, but she knew that when she was alone again she would lie for tortured hours awake and fighting for doubts of him. When he could not give her another minute she broke away from him, after a last clinging kiss, and began to run across the rough, dry stubble of the winter-bitten lawn.

Before she reached the house she looked up instinctively to see if any lights yet burned. Every window was dark, even Nyda's, but as Billy's anxious eyes scanned the foreade of the house she saw again the figure of a man creeping down the fire escape that led to the balcony outside Nyda's windows. She had no doubt that it was Eddie Banning, leaving Nyda. But this time Billy was as anxious not to be detected as Eddie Banning could have been. Throwing herself flat on the lawn, behind the trunk of a tree, she waited until the creeping figure had dropped to the ground, and had scurried off, almost bent double, toward the alley at the rear of the house.

With shaking fingers she fitted her night key into the front door of the house and was toptoeing as noiselessly as possible up the staircase when a grotesque figure appeared descending the stairs from the fourth floor. It was hard to recognize the impressive Sawyers in tthe night-shirted figure that held a pistol in a wavering right hand.

"It's just—me, Sawyers," Billy gasped in a husky whisper. "Don't shoot! I—I've just been out for a breath of fresh air. I couldn't sleep."

"I thought I heard a noise down below," Sawyers told her sourly, his eyes ugly with suspicion. "Something woke me up—don't know just what it was. But I guess it's all right."

Grumbling, his nightshirt flapping about his legs, Sawyers turned and went back up the stairs.

When Billy went down for breakfast the next morning, she learned from Mrs. Meadows that Nyda was still suffering from a headache, and would not go to school that day. T. Q. was accepting his coffee from Mrs. Meadows when Sawyers bent over him with a request for a private word with him in the library. The millionaire frowned with annoyance, but something portentous in the face and voice of his butler made him follow him without argument.

"What's the matter, dear?" Mrs. Meadows inquired of Billy. "You look quite pale, and your hands are shaking. Didn't you sleep well?"

"No, I'm afraid I didn't," Billy answered, scarcely knowing what she said, for her heart was pounding with a sickening apprehension of what Sawyers was saying to T. Q. Curtis. The old sneak! What business was it of his that she had slipped out of the house after midnight? But Billy knew that if T. Q. asked her for an explanation she could not give it, could not involve Dal Romaine.

Sawyers returned alone to the dining room.

"Mr. Curtis wishes to speak with you in the library, Miss Billy," he said to her, with no attempt to conceal the malice and contempt in his eyes.

She found her benefactor standing before the opened safe in the library, his tall, gaunt body sagging. And the eyes with which he looked at her were appealing and tragic, rather than angry.

The angry flush spread to her brow and throat, as she faced him defiantly.

"I suppose Sawyers has been tattling on me," she began indignantly.

"Billy, my safe was robbed last night," T. Q. interrupted her with sad sternness. "All of the jewelry I had given you girls, and the unset diammonds and four hundred dollars in cash were taken. No, don't interrupt please! Sawyers saw you kneeling before the safe. He says you were trying the combination—"

"That's a lie!" Billy gasped. "I had opened that section of the bookcase to look for a bead that had rolled under it, but I never touched the safe! Surely, Mr. Curtis, you don't think—"

"I don't know what to think, Billy, child. Sawyers called me in here a moment ago and asked me to open the safe, to see if its contents were intact. He refused to give his reasons for thinging I had been robbed, but when I found the safe empty of everything of value, he told me what he had seen last night. I find that I have been robbed as I've told you. I would almost as soon believe that I had robbed myself as to suspect you child, but the facts are such that I must ask you for an explanation."

Billy's blue eyes were staring at him with incredulous horror. "You—you really think I robbed you, Mr. Curtis?"

"I'm not saying that I thing so—but I did not steal the things and I did not help anyone else to steal them."

"I want to believe you, Billy. But—the safe was opened by someone who had the combination. You girls have seen me open it scores of times. Any acute observer could pick up a combination in that way. I'm afraid it was what the police call an "inside job', child. Shall I call in Mrs. Meadows and Nyda and question them, before I question the servants?"

"I have told you all I have to tell," Billy answered proudly. "Of course you will use your own judgment as to questioning the others."

When he turned wearily to the door, something clicked in Billy's brain. Suddenly the pieces of the puzzle had slipped into place. Eddie Banning—his midnight visits to Nyda's room—the shadow creeping down the wall last night—the secret trouble that had been tormenting the girl—Of course! What had she not understood from the first moment of this terrible conversation?

"I suppose Sawyers has been tattling on me," she began indignantly.

Billy depends on Nyda to support her story about the book—and Nyda lies.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible through the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a trial.

'Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 112 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

Girls who work in factories know just how Miss Schmidt felt. Perhaps they, too, will find better health by taking the Vegetable Compound.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CARD OF THANKS 3

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Gunn, sisters and brothers wish to thank all friends for their kindness during the death of their daughter; also Mrs. Bell, and for the floral offerings.

WE WISH to thank our neighbors and friends for the many acts of kindness bestowed upon us during the sickness and death of our loved one; also for the music and beautiful floral offering.—E. A. Wolfe and children, Mrs. J. R. Stone and family.

OBITUARIES 6

MABEL CLARE STONE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stone was born at Maitland, Missouri, March 20, 1890. Died at Grandview Sanitarium, Kansas City, Kan., May 31, 1927.

She moved with her parents to Braddyville, Iowa, in 1899, where she continued to live until her marriage to Eldon A. Wolfe, April 18, 1909.

Three children were born to this union: George J., Leola Evelyn, and Edwin Ross, who died in infancy.

She is survived by her husband and two children, her mother, Mrs. J. R. Stone; her sister, Mrs. Otto James, and brothers Fred, Clyde and Ralph of Braddyville, Ia.; and Floyd Stone of San Francisco, California. She was preceded in death by her father, one brother and two sisters.

Mabel as we all knew her was a graduate of the Braddyville High School, class of 1907, continuing her school work at Amity College, College Springs, Iowa, until her marriage.

Mabel was a kind and loving mother and took great pride in her home and family, always striving to make things better and more pleasant, ever ready to do more than her part in sickness and help those in need and scatter sunshine along the path of others.

She was an active worker in the Clover Leaf Club, and Grange and community affairs to which she belonged, and will be greatly missed by all her friends, which were numbered by those who knew her, from the youngest to the oldest it was Mabel.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church at Braddyville, Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock, conducted by the Reverend J. H. Beveridge, pastor of the M. E. Church of Braddyville. The music was furnished by the Male Quartet.

Burial was in the Miriam Cemetery of Maryville.

Cattle Steady; Hogs Lower; Lambs Higher

Kansas City Stock Yards, June 6.—Urgent demand in connection with receipts of lambs sent prices up 25 to 50 cents, mostly 50 cents, and took quotations more than $1 above a week ago. Sheep were 25 cents above last week's close and 50 cents above a week ago. Fat steers held steady, cows and heifers were stronger, bulls were 25 cents higher and stockers and feeders slightly lower. The tone in the trade was fairly active. Hog prices broke 10 to 15 cents to a new low position for the year and quotations fell short of the 9 cent range.

Monday's Receipts.

Receipts Monday were 11,000 cattle, 10,000 hogs and 6,000 sheep, compared with 11,000 cattle, 12,000 hogs and 9,000 sheep a week ago, and 10,275 cattle, 11,475 hogs and 8,950 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Trade in fat steers opened slowly Monday, but later became fairly active at fully steady prices. There was nothing of outstanding quality or finish in the run to attract special orders, yet the bulk of the supply was plain to fairly good and they were well suited to current needs. Yearling steers sold at $9 to $11 and medium and strong weights $9.50 to $12. Had prime steers been available they would have brought $13 or better. About 60 carloads of Texas steers were included in the runs. Those that had been fed cotton seed products brought $9 to $10.50 and the straight grassers $6.50 to $8.75. Demand for the grassers was fairly active. Cows and heifers were lower early last week, but before the close developed a stronger tone and continued active today. Heifers sold at $7.50 to $10.25 and cows from canners at $4.25 up to $8.50 for choice grades. Bulls were 25 cents higher and calves steady.

Stockers and Feeders.

Trade in stockers and feeders was quiet and prices had a lower trend. Cattle are showing increased weight from grass and part of the decline in prices is accounted for on that basis. However, general demand is above normal for this season of the year.

Hogs.

Chicago, Monday, had 67,000 hogs, 21,000 more than the combined supply at Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and St. Joseph. This bunching of a heavy run at the lake market caused a general decline and took quotations into a new low level for the year and more than $4 under a year ago. Heavy receipts are cleaning up available supplies and there may be very light runs in July and August. The 140 to 240 pound grades sold today at $8.75 to $8.90; 240 to 300 pounds $8.35 to $8.80; packing sows $7.25 to $8; stags $7 to $7.85 and stock hogs and pigs $8.50 to $9.00.

Sheep and Lambs.

The lamb market has shown a substantial advance in the past few days and quotations Monday are fully $1 higher than a week ago. Sheep are up 50 cents for the same period. Fat lambs are bringing $16 to $16.95; yearlings $12.25 to $13.25; wethers $7.50 to $8.25; ewes $5.50 to $6.50.

Horses and Mules.

Trade in horses and mules was quiet and will remain so for the next few weeks.

Chas. M. Pipkin,
Market Correspondent.

WATER HERE IS HEALTHFUL, STATE FINDS

Samples Taken From Four Places in City Pass Analysis With Satisfactory Rating.

Samples of Maryville's city water, taken from four different places, have been reported satisfactory by the state board of health, Jefferson City, after a bacteriological examination.

Mayor W. O. Garrett today received a letter from W. Scott Johnson, chief sanitary engineer of the health department, stating that four samples of water examined were satisfactory. A fifth sample, taken from the well at the pumping station, was broken in transit.

Water samples were taken from the library building, the Linville Hotel, a tap at South Buchanan and Lincoln streets, and a tap at Fourth and Dunn streets. The analysis showed there was no B Coli in the sampler, except from the tap at Fourth and Dunn streets. This sample showed two B. Coli per 100 cubic centimeters.

The standard for safe drinking water is not to exceed two B. Coli for each 100 cubic centimeters, which is about a cupful. B. Coli is a germ present in human and animal bowel discharges, so that it is used as an index of contamination. Where it is found in considerable excess over the standard, the germs of typhoid, dysentery, colitis and diarrhoea may at any time be present in quantities sufficient to cause sickness.

The examination of the Maryville water samples was made in accordance with the standard methods of water analysis of the American Public Health Association, Mr. Johnson stated in his letter to Mayor Garrett.

The water samples were collected by Mayor Garrett June 2 and reported yesterday.

Chicago, June 7.—Despite pronounced weakness in corn and fairly heavy offerings early, wheat was firm and showed sharp advances of about 3 cents. Wheat closed 2⅞ to 3⅛ cents higher. The cash demand was indifferent.

There was heavy liquidation of corn early on the good weather over the belt, and prices were off sharply. The cash market was ½ to 2 cents lower. Corn closed ⅝ to ¾ cents lower.

Oats lost about 1 cent early in sympathy with corn and closed unchanged to ⅝ cent lower. The cash market was ¼ cent higher.

Provisions were about steady.

Old Equipment of Battery Sent Away

The last of the horse-drawn equipment of Battery C, 128th Field Artillery, Missouri National Guard, will be shipped from Maryville today to the Proving Ground at Savannah, Ill. Included in the shipment are six caissons, ten limbers, two battery store wagons, a reel cart and all tools and accessories going with the equipment. They were loaded at the Burlington station yesterday.

This material is being shipped from here because of the motorization of Battery C. Two members of the Battery, Sergeants Tarpley and Whitehead, are now at Sedalia, getting the motor equipment in condition to be driven to Maryville. The trucks are expected to arrive here by July 1.

Captain D. F. Jones, junior instructor, stationed with the 128th Field Artillery, with headquarters at Sedalia, was here last night and today, making a visit of instruction to the local National Guard unit. He came here yesterday from Albany and tonight will go to burlington Junction to make a similar visit with the Service Battery there.

The visiting officer is a captain in the regular army stationed at Sedalia. He was accompanied here by Mrs. Jones and their 4-year-old daughter, Doris Blanche.

The local battery's new motor equipment will be sent here probably about July 1, the captain said.

"Your battery is getting organized nicely in its new building," he commented. "The men looked well and were nicely uniformed. Attendance and interest is good."

'SLIM' KNOWN AS DAREDEVIL

LINDBERGH A COUNTY FAIR PERFORMER FOUR YEARS.

ALWAYS A THRILLER

"More Pure Grit Than Anyone I Had Ever Seen," Says Companion.—Disaster On Canoe Trip.

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
(Copyright, 1927, by the United Press)

CHAPTER 7

One in Montana, Wyoming and Colorado most everyone who went to a country fair between 1922 and 1925 has membership in the "I've seen Lindbergh Fly" Club.

During those years Charlie Lindbergh had just turned 20 years. He was at heart a lover of adventure and he headed west to find it.

In 1922, after he had tired of giving the townspeople of Little Falls, Minnesota, airplane rides, he joined Harold J. Lynch, now of Butte, Mont., and the two barnstormed through the west thrilling the people who gathered at county fairs with the capers they cut in their airplanes.

Lynch was the senior flier. He had been a flight instructor training army aviators during the war and for that matter, he still is a well known aviator in the west.

"I knew Lindbergh in those days as a fellow who had more pure grit than anyone I had ever seen," said Lynch, telling of their experiences.

"First he was with us a mechanic, then he became a parachute jumper and general aerial dare-devil.

Walked Off The Wing.

"One of his stunts was to walk out on the wing of a plane going 90 miles an hour and step off into the air with his parachute. That made many a Roman holiday for the folks who went to the country fairs.

"Everyone called him 'Slim' out there.

"He knew how to fly and pretty soon he had a plane of his own and was ready either to be the parachute jumper or to pilot a 'stunt' machine—whatever the people wanted."

He soon was giving more thrills per hour of flying than any other flier could offer. The "falling leaf" the "Immelmann turn" spins, dives and all of the capers that airmen have invented to make watching crowds gasp with excitement seemed to come easy to Lindbergh.

"He simply out-aced all the other aces," said Lynch, "with his daring and his tricks.

"His particular specialty was to ascend to a great height, loop and turn in a dizzy series of maneuvers and then swoop down at terrific speed, until even aviators thought he surely would crash. He would come closer to earth than any other flier dared, but he always had control of his plane and just about the moment they were calling for the ambulance to be ready to carry 'Slim' away, his plane would stick its nose up and he would soar away again in a graceful ascent.

"I always wondered when I saw him do that, whether anyone in the crowd had a weak heart. If anyone did, that trick certainly would stop is completely.

Always On Time.

Lindbergh became known not only for his stunt flying in Montana, Wyoming and Colorado at that time, but for the characteristic he still has, namely that of being on time at all costs. It became a matter of general knowledge that when Lindbergh was scheduled to fly at a county fair or public carnival, it was certain that Lindbergh would fly. That was not always true of all the aviators who were barnstorming in those days. Many times he would complete his program at one fair, get into his plane and fly, regardless of weather, to the next town for an appearance the following day, braving storms and most difficult flying conditions, rather than disappoint the public.

When the flying season was over Lindbergh went to work in a garage in Billings, Montana. As a sideline to his work as a mechanic, he did parachute drops from time to time, as a bit of advertising for the garage.

Finally Lindbergh tired of Montana and decided to go back to Little Falls. He made his way to the headwaters of the Missouri river and there got a canoe and decided he would go home by boat, canoeing down the Missouri to the Mississippi and then up the Mississippi to Little Falls. He started out alone, as he has been on most of his adventures. All went well until the trip was well underway. Then the boat got caught in an eddy, overturned, sank and left Lindbergh without means of transportation and barely left him alive.

Missouri Club Woman Has Article on Twentieth Century Club's Work

A brief history of the club accompanies the picture. The article follows:

The Twentieth Century Club of Maryville, Missouri, organized in 1906 with eight members, federated in 1907 with State and National, and has grown into a departmental club of one hundred and thirty-two members.

March 17th celebrated their twenty-first birthday with a social event given at the Elks Club.

"Among the members was the first president, Mrs. Ed G. Orear, who has been a loyal and faithful worker all these years. In a clever poem, written by the president, Mrs. C. P. Fryer, she presented Mrs. Orear with a corsage bouquet and a federation pin in appreciation of her untiring work.

"During the years past the club has been a leading spirit in the town, both in civic, philanthropic and literary work. The club started the first "clean-up" campaign, bringing Mrs. Baxter of Kirksville here. A mass meeting was held at the Methodist church, when Mrs. Baxter explained the methods the women used in Kirksville, and since that time our "clean-up" has been an annual affair. The club has met all requests of the State and National Federation and sent representatives to state and district meetings.

"Four departments constitute the club: Music and Literature, Arts and Crafts, Civics, and Tourist. The Music and Literature department, under the leadership of Mrs. D. J. Thomas and Mrs. M. A. Peery, hold their meetings in the beautiful auditorium of our State Teachers' College. This year they have presented four one-act plays: "Wisdom Teeth," "The Maker of Dreams," "Klaptomaniac," and "The Piper Pays." The musical programs from the Classic Period and Modern Music, talk on "Current Events."

"The Tourist department, with Mrs. E. D. Argold, chairman, Mrs. H. C. Todd, vice-chairman, have had a most comprehensive study of India.

"The Arts and Crafts department, one of the most popular departments, with Mrs. John Z. Curnutt, chairman, Mrs. Guy Mutz, vice-chairman, have made many beautiful articles of reed, wax, and silk flowers, pillows, lamp shades and rugs. These will be exhibited at the open session in May.

"The Civic department meets monthly. Miss Bertha Anderson is chairman, Mrs. Hugh Strong, vice-chairman. A man or woman from the college or town is invited to talk on civic improvement or leading topics of the day. This is followed by a "parliamentary drill."

"Each department has one open session during the year, entertaining all the members and their invited friends. The business of the club is controlled by the executive board, which is composed of all the officers and chairmen of standing committees.

"A picture show was sponsored early in the season, and a percentage given the club; also, selling tickets for the college "Winter Artist Course." Three luncheons are given for the entire club during the year. Mrs. E. M. Platt of St. Joseph, state chairman of American Homes, was the honored guest at the January luncheon. Mrs. H. C. Todd was the delegate to Des Moines for the meeting of the National Congress of the American Home Department of the federation. One hundred and fifty dollars was contributed this year to Endowment Fund. This makes a total of two hundred and fifty dollars sent by the club. The Club House fund of one thousand dollars has been placed in the Building and Loan Association. This is increased yearly by fifty cents per capita taken from the year's dues.

"The success of this year is due greatly to our very efficient president, Mrs. C. P. Fryer. Mrs. Fryer is a typical southern woman. Soft of speech and winning personality, and is not only popular in the Twentieth Century Club, but is president of the Spanish-American War Auxiliary, president of the Westminster Guild of the Presbyterian church, and a member of the School Board; vice-chairman of Nodaway County Democratic Central Committee, secretary of Fourth Congressional District Democratic Committee, and secretary-treasurer of the First District Federated clubs.

"The First District has twice been our guest, and we hope in the near future to entertain the State Federation."

Miss Lorene Caudle of Fort Morgan, Colo., the guest of Miss Helen Dragoo, is spending a few days with her grandfather, Hiram Caudle, in Hopkins.

So Fast

Cook a hot breakfast now in 2½ to 5 minutes

QUICK QUAKER cooks in less time than it takes you to prepare plain toast.

That means a hot, nourishing breakfast in a hurry.

It means an excellently balanced ration; combining protein, carbohydrates and vitamines — plus the "bulk" to make laxatives less often needed — cooked and served without muss or bother.

Why go on with less nourishing foods? Quaker Oats and milk is the dietetic urge of today. Start every day that way.

Your grocer has Quick Quaker—also Quaker Oats as you have always known them.

You'd delight Blanche Ring

if you offered her a Lucky Strike

She'd say to you:

Blanche Ring, popular comedienne and noted star of the stage.

"The life of an actress is one of nerve-strain. If she sings, also, her worries are doubled. Her audiences reflect her moods. If she is mentally tired, she cannot help but convey her fatigue to those out in front and the result is a form of ennui on both sides of the footlights. I have found a sure cure for such fatigue, on the part of the player, is a good cigarette. For years I have smoked Lucky Strikes and the mental balm and real enjoyment I have derived from them have helped me marvelously. In addition they have protected my voice. I use no other brand."

Blanche Ring

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"It's toasted"
